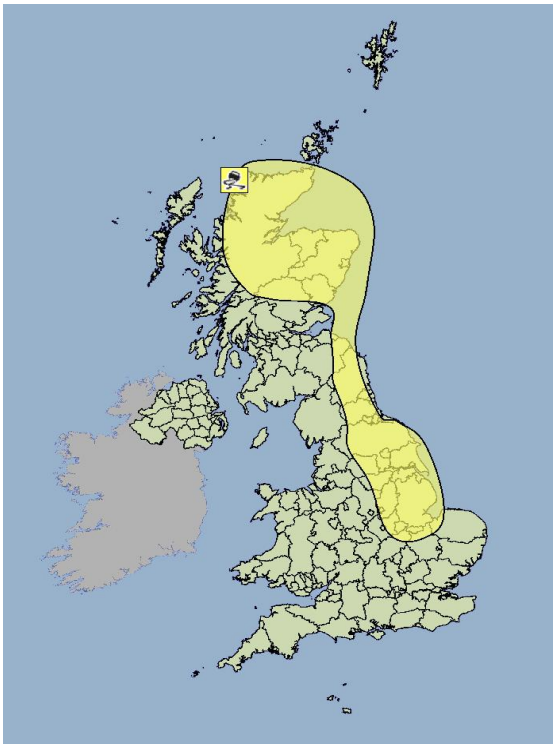
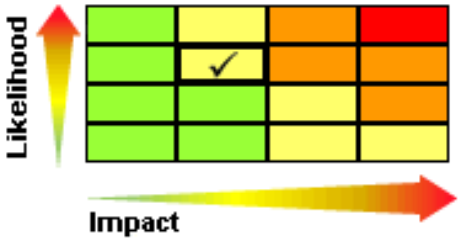
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
With showers easing over Scotland during the night and the snow level rising in eastern England this warning has been changed to an ice warning from a dual snow and ice warning.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 06:00 on Fri, 01st Dec 2017 until 10:00 on Fri, 01st Dec 2017

Icy stretches are affecting some untreated roads, pavements and cycle paths or where showers have caused wash off on treated roads. These icy stretches are likely to last during the Friday morning rush hour for many places.

This is an update to make this solely an ice warning as snow showers have eased over Scotland during Thursday night with the majority of showers over eastern England now falling as rain and sleet. Orkney, Shetland, some coastal parts of northeast England and much of East Anglia have also been removed from the warning with surface temperatures having risen in these areas.
